

the co-operative party

Don't make the world's poor pay for Brexit

This Fairtrade Fortnight, help ensure that future trade deals don't widen global inequality.

Over the next few years, our trading relationship with the world is likely to change fundamentally. As the Government pursues the UK's withdrawal from the European Customs Union, new trade deals will need to be negotiated and rules re-written.

For more than two decades, the co-operative movement has campaigned to Make Trade Fair. Now, many of the protections we have successfully fought for could be at risk.

As the UK's place in the world changes, it's vital that we safeguard and build on rules that give a fair deal to developing countries. Join us on calling on International Trade Secretary Liam Fox to:

- Put in place trade rules that allow the poorest countries to import their produce into the UK tariff-free, without forcing them to do the same for ours.
- Make it easier for farmers in developing countries to process and package their produce themselves, increasing the value of their exports
- Guarantee that new trade deals will incorporate existing commitments and standards on the environment, human rights, and Sustainable Development Goals.
- Increase democracy and transparency by giving Parliament the ability to scrutinise the final terms of new trade deals as they are negotiated

First name	Last Name	Email address	Postcode	I'd like to join the Party
JANE	BLOGGS	YOURADDRESS@EMAIL.COM	SW1 0AA	X

By providing your details, you agree that the Co-operative Party may contact you with information about relevant campaigns, promotions, and Party membership. Your information will not be shared, and you may unsubscribe at any time. Printed and promoted by Claire McCarthy on behalf of the Co-operative Party, 65 St John Street, London EC1M4AN

Information for Party officers:

About this form

The majority of people who get involved in the Co-operative Party for the first time do not immediately become members. Most people prefer to get involved gradually, attending events, taking part in online campaigns, and staying up to date with the Party's work.

Asking people who attend our events or pass by our street stalls to join our email list is therefore a great first step!

This form is designed to make it easy for party officers and event organisers to help build the Party's email list in a way that is clear and simple, and compliant with the law.

You should bring copies of this form to every event you organise, and give attendees the chance to sign up – whether they are currently a member or not.

Regularly asking existing members for contact details is a useful opportunity to ensure those that the Party holds are up to date.

Information for Party officers:

Returning this form

Once this form is full, you should fill in the details below so that we know how and when the data was collected. It should be kept in a safe place, and returned as soon as possible to Party Head Office where it will be processed. This usually happens within 2-3 weeks.

Event _____

Date collected ____ / ____ / _____

Person responsible for collecting

Page ____ of ____

Return to 65 St John Street, London EC1M 4AN